▼ Tang-period

Fereghan horse

This magnificent model of a Fereghan horse is a fine example of the sancai figures that were made as funerary goods during the Tang period. The body is covered with dappled cream, green, and ochre glazes, which have a tendency to trickle because of the viscous quality of the lead glaze. The horse is splendidly caparisoned, with a finely modelled saddle, extravagantly decorated crupper, and other ornate trappings. (AD 618–907; ht 77.5cm/30½in; value M)*
